PRACTICE PROFILE

The practice has a rich history as the business has existed for over 100 years, making us one of the longest practicing Architectural firms in the region. Following Richard's retirement in 1990, Peter Eves and Ian Moore took over the running of the business and they have continued to develop expertise in the design of residential schemes, education services and mixed-use facilities. Work on community projects and the National Health Service, both locally and across the UK, alongside ecclesiastical and domestic project has created an exciting and inspiring portfolio of work.

John Leeson and Andrew Staunton are the new generation in the office and together we are looking to the future. We offer our clients the advantage of working with Building Information Modelling (BIM) software and have already seen how 3D renders and imagery of schemes can transform the way in which we communicate our ideas to clients, other consultants, local authorities and contractors. These new technologies together with our traditional skill sets allow us to communicate our designs and aspirations so that we can help you, the client, to achieve your goals and ambitions on both current and future projects.

RESIDENTIAL

Considering options and possibilities related to building or extending a property can be baffling. Richard Eves Architects will deliver early concept designs, offer valuable insight into local authorities, planning permission and building regulation requirements and provide information regarding managing the project, an estimated project timeline and an understanding of costs for the project at the beginning of every job.

We are passionate about homes and seeing the way people inhabit dwellings and over the years have designed and built a variety of residential buildings. From houses, apartments, barn conversions, holiday homes, cabins and multi-unit residential buildings we have developed schemes in the form of new builds, complete renovations, alterations and additions, to adaptive reuse across the UK.

MIXED-USE DEVELOPMENT

Mixed-use developments to house the growing need for residential properties alongside, commercial, cultural, institutional and entertainment uses are becoming increasingly popular in our towns and cities. On such schemes, Richard Eves Architects, provide our clients with a service, that exceeds expectations, from inception to completion of the project. Our commitment to design quality and attention to detail make us the obvious choice for your next development opportunity.

EDUCATION

Education is continually evolving in the UK. Richard Eves Architects always look for new ways to help these environments to develop and improve the way future generations learn. Over the years we have worked with many schools across the UK and have helped to deliver classrooms, libraries, theatres, 6th form centres and laboratories, through new and refurbishment projects. We have worked in all sectors of education, from independent to state-funded across a variety of age groups.

We believe that the quality of teaching and student well being is directly affected by the environment in which teaching and learning takes place. We aim to provide valuable knowledge on how to develop affordable schemes with standardisation without compromising on creative design as well as using existing spaces more effectively to meet with the ever-increasing demands of the curriculum.

HEALTHCARE

Over the last 30 years, Richard Eves Architects have worked with numerous NHS Trusts across the UK providing our expertise in healthcare design.

The healthcare sector is changing radically. Advances in medical science and technology, together with an ageing population, are having a dramatic effect on the building types required. We pride ourselves on our design led approach to delivering innovative, efficient and user-friendly spaces that meet the brief for users, consultants and carers.

In recent years, we have developed a particular expertise in the depth of both residential and outpatient mental health facilities. Our work has led to improvement in coping skills and relationships of the patients as well as providing safe and comfortable environments for recovery.

We also provide design services for retirement and care home living. With a dramatic rise in services for users with dementia we aim to provide significant improvements in quality of life for these residents through a wide range of environmental and building designs. Our designs aim to provide stimulating spaces that help to enhance confidence, maximise independence and create familiarity.

REFURBISHMENT

The lifecycle of a building can be significantly extended by effective refurbishment. Richard Eves Architects view every building as an unique opportunity and seek to find the correct approach to refurbishment in order to create the very best environment for our clients. We work with our clients to rejuvenate existing buildings for new and exciting purposes.
